22. Given the current mission, major programs, and major operational objectives of the department/agency to which you have been nominated, what in your background or employment experience do you believe affirmatively qualifies you for appointment to the position for which you have been nominated, and why do you wish to serve in that position?

While I have not served on the board of an organization as large as the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, my service on various nonprofit boards has given me significant experience in strategic and fiscal oversight of organizations. Furthermore, my work in education—at the American Enterprise Institute and the George Mason University—has taught me the importance of civic education in service of democracy, science, and human flourishing.

23. What do you believe are your responsibilities, if confirmed, to ensure that the department/agency has proper management and accounting controls, and what experience do you have in managing a large organization?

A board of directors' obligation is to ensure fiscal responsibility, strategic foresight, and legal compliance. The directors do not replace or duplicate executives, but they oversee executives and hold them accountable through careful investigation, probing questions, candid advice, and constant attention to stakeholders' concerns. While my own managerial experience has focused on smaller teams—a law-school research center; a small law firm—my work on nonprofit boards has given me experience in directors' crucial, multifaceted oversight functions.

24. What do you believe to be the top three challenges facing the department/agency, and why?

- a. Technology: CPB-supported programming now reaches customers on a variety of video and audio platforms, not simply through TV and radio. In an era of unprecedented technological innovation, the CPB must make important choices as to which platforms to utilize and prioritize.
- b. Civic Education: In the run-up to the 250th anniversary of 1776, CPB has a unique opportunity to teach and commemorate the nation's Declaration of Independence and War of Independence, educating the public and serving the entire country's various audiences. These opportunities will continue in the years ahead as we approach the 250th anniversaries of other major events from the nation's founding.
- c. Audience Preferences and Needs: Viewers and listeners enjoy an ever-growing array of choices in terms of both video and audio programming. At all times, the CPB must carefully consider where it can best add value to audiences' educational programming, in terms of underserved needs and underserved communities.
